ABOUT BEHEALTH

A Process to Innovate Behavioral Health

BeHealth.Today is a human-centered design process from the County of San Diego Health and Human Services Agency created to generate innovative proposals.

- A Learning Event to Understand the Process
- A Workshop to Generate New Ideas
- A Plan to Develop a Proposal
- A Presentation to Potential Funders

BeHealth provides the opportunity for people with lived experience, family members and community groups to generate new approaches and uses of technology.

ABOUT US

The People Behind the Process

BeHealth.Today has been developed by experts in the fields of creativity, innovation and social issues.

- San Diego State University Social Policy Institute
- Community Health Improvement Partners (CHIP)
- The Idea Guy™

Together, we provide the education, experience and process to develop ideas to innovate behavioral health.

HOW TO ENGAGE

A Step-By-Step Guide to Participate

To learn about the process, attend a Learning Event, a one-hour overview of what's included, advance workshop registration and networking with like-minded people.

You can register for the learning event in advance, or walk in the day of the event. There is no cost to attend.

To generate a new idea that solves a behavioral health issue, attend the Workshop, a four-hour event designed to generate new ideas, a project plan and next steps for you, your colleagues or group.

You must register for the workshop in advance. There is no cost to participate.

To create your proposal, you, your colleagues or group will work on your project plan, develop ideas, prototypes and do testing to identify potential impact.

You can request a consultant to coach your project development. There is no cost for consultants.

Attend Presentations to share your proposal. Workshop attendees will have an opportunity present their idea for consideration by potential funders. There is no cost to participate or attend.
